MESSAGE FROM THE PROJECT IN-CHARGE

Dear Friends,

It gives me great joy to share the Annual Report 2025–2026 of the Nagpur Multipurpose Social Service Society (NMSSS).

Having served as the Director of NMSSS from 2019 to 2025, I have had the privilege of witnessing the growth of our organization and the strength of the communities we work with. Even today, as Project In-charge, my commitment to the mission of NMSSS remains the same.

One of the dreams close to my heart has been to promote sustainable agriculture and create a space where farmers can learn, experiment, and find practical solutions for their livelihoods. I am especially happy that this vision is now taking shape through the Sustainable Agriculture Learning Centre at Umred block of Nagpur, Maharashtra and also supporting Tribal farmers for sustainable livelihood practices in Gharratola, Balagha, M.P.

With the support of the Catholic Bishops' Conference, work on the Agricultural Learning Centre has now begun. Along with promoting sustainable and climate-resilient farming practices, the initiative aims to encourage agriculture-based enterprises and create better livelihood opportunities for farmers and rural communities in the region.

This journey has been possible because of the trust and cooperation of our farmers, staff, community members, partners, donors, and well-wishers. Their participation continues to remind us that lasting development can only happen when communities are actively involved in shaping their own future.

I am grateful to the entire NMSSS team for their dedication and hard work. I look forward to seeing this initiative grow into a centre of learning, innovation, and hope for farmers and young people in the years ahead.

Let us continue working together to build stronger, self-reliant, and sustainable communities.

With gratitude and best wishes,

EMPOWERING THE FARMERS IN INTEGRATED DEVELOPMENT – PHASE III

Cultivating Change: Empowering Farmers & Families in Umred Block

Vision in Action:

EFID-III aimed to uplift the socio-economic status of marginalized farmers in Umred Block, Nagpur District, by promoting sustainable agricultural practices and providing alternative livelihood opportunities. Over the course of the project, various interventions were made to strengthen the agricultural sector and empower marginalized communities, particularly women. By introducing sustainable farming techniques, supporting income-generating activities, and improving governance participation, the project successfully impacted over 2,000 households across 15 villages.

SUSTAINABLE AND CLIMATE-RESILIENT AGRICULTURE

During the year, NMSSS strengthened the resilience and livelihoods of rural farming communities by promoting sustainable agriculture, organic farming, food and nutrition security, and diversified income opportunities. The interventions reached farmers, women and rural households with practical knowledge, livelihood assets and market-oriented skills.

- 620 farmers were trained and oriented on sustainable agriculture practices
- 282 farmers adopted Sustainable Agriculture Practices, including organic farming, crop diversification, natural pest management and soil conservation.
- 342 farmers began preparing and using organic fertilizers, reducing dependence on external agricultural inputs.
- 190 farmers reduced chemical fertilizer use by 25–40%, contributing to lower input costs and improved soil health.
- 310 farmers adopted botanical pesticides and environmentally friendly pest-management practices.
- 165 farmers adopted mulching and other moisture-conservation practices, while 137 farmers introduced mixed cropping and crop diversification.
- 71 farmers began experimenting with millet cultivation as a low-water and climate-resilient crop.

STRENGTHENING FOOD SECURITY THROUGH SUSTAINABLE AGRICULTURE PRACTICES:

- 352 households established Kitchen/Nutrition Gardens, improving access to fresh and nutritious food.
- 275 households reported a 30–40% reduction in expenditure on vegetables through home production.
- 295 households reported increased consumption of fresh vegetables, particularly among children and family members.
- 145 households generated supplementary income by selling surplus vegetables from their gardens.

WOMEN'S ECONOMIC EMPOWERMENT

Transforming Rural Livelihoods

- 248 participants started Income Generation Activities after training, exceeding the project target.
- 186 participants adopted value-addition enterprises in dairy processing, food preservation, grain processing and packaging.
- 186 women started or prepared to establish enterprises such as tailoring, food processing, food carts and photocopy/Xerox services.
- 205 households reported increased weekly income through small-scale enterprises.
- 152 households generated additional income through dairy and processed-food sales.
- 96 participants gained improved market access through SHGs, local markets and collective marketing.

From sustainable practices to stronger livelihoods, the EFID Project is helping farmers build healthier farms, resilient families and a more sustainable rural future.”

Horticulture Development - Growing Future Incomes

Under the EFID-III Project, 30 farmers from 15 villages received training in agriculture-based alternative livelihoods, with a focus on horticulture development. On 16 November 2025, each farmer received 50 fruit saplings of orange and sweet lime, resulting in 1,500 saplings distributed.

The initiative aims to promote long-term farm income, crop diversification and climate-resilient livelihoods while making productive use of available farmland.

Impact and Expected Outcomes:

- Sustainable Income: Mature fruit trees will create a long-term source of income through fruit sales.
- Improved Nutrition: Home-grown fruits will contribute to better household dietary diversity.
- Knowledge Sharing: Farmers can share horticulture skills and practices with other community members.
- Climate Resilience: Fruit trees will increase green cover, improve soil health, reduce erosion and support local biodiversity.
- Farm Diversification: Horticulture will reduce dependence on seasonal crops and strengthen household livelihood resilience.

EMPOWERING WOMEN FARMERS THROUGH HANDS-ON ORGANIC FARMING EDUCATION

On 19 December 2025, 106 women farmers from the EFID-III project participated in an enriching exposure visit to IRIS Agro Farms, Kalmeshwar, Nagpur. The visit provided a hands-on opportunity to experience practical, affordable and environmentally friendly approaches to farming. Through live demonstrations and interactive learning facilitated by Mr. Sunil Khonde, participants explored techniques including Jeevamrut, Dashaparni extract, Nadep composting, neem-based pest management and mushroom cultivation. These practices demonstrated how locally available resources can be transformed into effective farm inputs while reducing production costs. Beyond technical knowledge, the exposure visit encouraged women farmers to think differently about farming—strengthening their confidence, practical skills and motivation to adopt and share sustainable practices within their communities. The experience reinforced the EFID-III commitment to women-led, environmentally responsible and economically viable agriculture.

PROMOTING LIVELIHOODS THROUGH GOAT REARING

On 17 March 2026, NMSSS launched a targeted Goat Rearing Initiative under the EFID-III Project, benefiting 30 women and farmers from marginalized and economically vulnerable households across 15 project villages. Priority was given to widows, single parents, farm labourers and families with limited livelihood opportunities. Each beneficiary received two goats, providing an affordable and sustainable foundation for livestock-based income generation.

The initiative goes beyond asset distribution by creating a pathway towards regular supplementary income, household nutrition and greater financial self-reliance.

Future Sustainability

The initiative is expected to create a self-sustaining livelihood cycle as beneficiaries expand their herds through breeding and generate income from the sale of goats. Regular veterinary support, improved fodder management and access to local markets will help protect and increase the value of the livestock assets. Women will be encouraged to reinvest part of their earnings in expanding their herds, strengthening household income and gradually creating opportunities for other vulnerable families to benefit.

From Two Goats to Greater Self-Reliance

SEWING MACHINES FOR WOMEN

“Stitching Pathways to Independence”

On 28 March 2026, 28 women from vulnerable households across 15 project villages received sewing machines, 1 Printer & 1 Food cart under the EFID-III Project. The support enabled women to strengthen tailoring skills, establish home-based enterprises and earn approximately ₹5,000–₹25,000 per month, promoting financial independence and entrepreneurship.

The sewing machines provide a long-term livelihood asset. Women can reinvest their earnings in materials and business expansion, while building local customer networks and strengthening their tailoring enterprises for sustained income and self-reliance.

Poultry Farming - Strengthening Rural Livelihoods

On 12 March 2025, NMSSS distributed 1,500 poultry chicks to 30 marginalized farmers under the EFID-III Project, with each beneficiary receiving 50 chicks. The initiative combined livestock assets with technical training, hands-on guidance and follow-up support in poultry management and disease prevention. The intervention aimed to create a low-investment income source, improve household food security and strengthen the economic resilience of vulnerable farming families.

Future Sustainability – Growing Livelihoods

Beneficiaries can expand their poultry units through breeding and reinvestment of earnings, gradually increasing household income. Continued technical and veterinary support, along with improved market linkages, will help sustain and scale the poultry enterprises.

EFID TEAM VISIT - WITNESSING FARMERS' PROGRESS AND IMPACT

On 30 January 2026, NMSSS welcomed Ms. Elena Bonaplata Revilla, Project In-charge – Nagpur & Chanda, and Mr. Ramón Alvarez, Head of SIA Coordination, as part of the EFID team visit.

During the visit, the team witnessed the practical impact of the project among beneficiary communities. They visited the local market, where farmers were selling their locally produced vegetables, providing a glimpse into how sustainable agriculture is creating opportunities for income generation and stronger local market linkages.

The team also visited IGP beneficiaries and interacted with them to understand their experiences, progress and the changes brought about through project support. A visit to a farmer group engaged in mushroom cultivation further highlighted the growing adoption of agriculture-allied enterprises as an additional source of livelihood.

The field visit provided a valuable opportunity for direct community interaction, learning and reflection, while demonstrating how project interventions are contributing to stronger livelihoods, farmer confidence, local entrepreneurship and sustainable rural development.

SUSTAINABLE DRINKING WATER RESOURCES AND FOOD SECURITY

The project was initiated to address two of the most pressing needs of the local tribal communities: Access to safe drinking water and Food security through sustainable agriculture practices.

In the tribal communities of Balaghat, access to safe water, nutritious food and sustainable livelihoods remains closely connected to the well-being of families. The project supported by Mission Bolzano, Italy, was implemented to address these interconnected challenges by strengthening access to reliable water resources and promoting sustainable, nutrition-sensitive agriculture.

Through interventions such as bore wells, sustainable farming practices, kitchen gardens and fruit-tree cultivation, the project has supported tribal households in improving their food security, nutrition and livelihood opportunities. The approach places communities at the centre of development, building on local knowledge and available resources to create solutions that are practical, sustainable and locally owned.

The project seeks to move beyond short-term assistance by helping tribal families build greater self-reliance, resilience and dignity—ensuring that access to water and food becomes a foundation for healthier families and more secure livelihoods.

IMPACT AND OUTCOMES

- 20 tribal families gained reliable access to water: Newly installed bore wells have reduced dependence on distant and uncertain water sources, strengthening household water security and providing a more dependable supply for drinking and essential domestic needs.
- Reduced burden on women and girls: With water available closer to home, women and girls spend significantly less time and physical effort collecting water. This has created greater opportunities for childcare, household responsibilities, kitchen gardening and livelihood activities.
- Improved health, hygiene and dignity: Regular access to safer water has enabled families to improve practices related to personal hygiene, sanitation and safe water handling, contributing to healthier living conditions and reducing vulnerability to water-related illnesses.
- Greater household resilience: Reliable water access also supports small-scale kitchen gardens and household food production, helping families strengthen nutrition, food security and self-reliance.

EXPANDING ACCESS TO SAFE DRINKING WATER

During 2025–26, NMSSS continued its efforts to address water insecurity among vulnerable tribal communities by installing 20 bore wells for 20 tribal families in water-stressed villages. The intervention has brought a reliable source of water closer to households and contributed to improved health, hygiene and daily well-being.

Growing Nutrition, Livelihoods and Hope: Promoting Fruit Horticulture among Tribal Families

Promotion of Kitchen and Distribution of Nutrition Trees (Fruit Trees): On 20th October 2025, Rev. Fr. Balaraju Madanu (Project In-charge) organized a significant community development initiative under the project 'Sustainable Drinking Water Resources and Food Security', supported by Mission Bolzano, Italy. The event, held in the presence of Rev. Fr. Nirdosh Xalxo, focused on the Promotion of Horticulture Fruit Trees to enhance nutrition and sustainable livelihoods. As part of this effort, 1250 fruit tree saplings—including Mango, Orange, Litchi, and Sweet Lime—were distributed to 25 tribal households from the Gonds and Oraon communities, with each household receiving 50 saplings. The program aimed to strengthen food security, diversify income sources, and promote long-term ecological sustainability through nutrition-sensitive agriculture.

Improved Household Nutrition for 100 Families with 457 individuals:

- 25 households received 1,250 fruit saplings (Mango, Orange, Litchi, Sweet Lime), promoting better fruit intake and long-term nutrition.
- 63 families-initiated kitchen gardens, now consuming homegrown vegetables regularly.

IMPACT ON COMMUNITY HEALTH AND WELL-BEING

The promotion of Sustainable Agriculture Practices (SAP) among tribal communities in Balaghat has resulted in improved household nutrition, greater availability of fresh and locally grown food, reduced dependence on external agricultural inputs, and stronger food security. Kitchen gardens, fruit cultivation and natural farming practices have helped tribal families become more self-reliant, nutrition-secure and resilient, while strengthening women's participation in household food production and encouraging sustainable practices across the community.

SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT OF AGRICULTURE LEARNING CENTRE AND PROMOTION OF AGRICULTURE ALLIED BUSINESS

PROJECT OVERVIEW

Small and marginal farmers often have limited access to practical agricultural training, modern knowledge and livelihood opportunities, which can affect farm productivity and household income. To address this gap, NMSSS is establishing an Agriculture Learning Centre as a locally accessible hub for practical training, demonstrations, knowledge sharing and farmer-led learning. The Centre aims to bridge the gap between agricultural knowledge and field-level practice, enabling farmers to learn sustainable farming techniques, explore agriculture-allied enterprises and develop skills that can contribute to improved and

Progress of Development

The construction of the Agriculture Learning Centre has progressed steadily during 2025–26, marking an important step towards establishing a permanent space for farmer training, demonstrations and knowledge sharing.

- Bhoomi Pujan Ceremony: The foundation stone ceremony was held on 17 June 2025, led by Archbishop Elias Gonsalves, formally marking the commencement of construction.
- Steady Construction Progress: The foundation and sub-structure works have been completed as per the approved design. RCC columns have been erected beyond the plinth level, and the project has progressed to nearly half of the planned structural phase.

PROGRESS OF DEVELOPMENT

A VISIT OF ENCOURAGEMENT AND SOLIDARITY

The Agriculture Learning Centre was honoured by the visit of Bishop Johannes Gorantla of Kurnool, accompanied by Pipinato Gabriele, Director of the Department for Projects, and Claudio Francesconi, Economic General, representing the Conferenza Episcopale Italiana (CEI). The delegation reviewed the construction progress and engaged with the NMSSS project team and community members.

The visit provided an opportunity to witness the progress of this important initiative and appreciate NMSSS's efforts to promote sustainable agriculture, farmer learning and community empowerment. Their encouragement and support reaffirm the shared commitment to creating opportunities for rural communities and building a more sustainable, resilient and self-reliant future for farmers.

ANGEL SCHOLARSHIP

The Angel Scholarship Fund, founded through the compassionate vision of the late Rev. Fr. Victor Rocha, continues to be a source of hope for vulnerable families. Rooted in his commitment to serving those facing economic hardship, the Fund provides timely support for education, healthcare, and essential needs, helping families move forward with dignity.

During 2025–26, the Angel Fund reached 39 individuals and families through two important forms of assistance:

- 32 deserving students received educational scholarships, helping them continue their studies and pursue brighter opportunities despite financial challenges.
- 7 individuals received medical assistance, enabling them to access essential medicines and healthcare support when they needed it most.

These interventions represent more than financial assistance. For a child, a scholarship can mean the opportunity to remain in school and dream beyond present circumstances; for a family facing illness, medical support can bring relief and renewed hope. Through the Angel Fund, NMSSS continues the legacy of Fr. Victor Rocha by investing in education, restoring dignity, and standing beside families during difficult moments. His spirit of compassion lives on through every student supported and every life touched by this enduring ministry.

JEEVAN PROJECT - A DECADE OF TRANSFORMATION AND EMPOWERMENT

The JEEVAN Project, implemented by NMSSS since 2015, concluded in April 2025, bringing to a close a remarkable journey of learning, partnership and transformation among rural communities. Over the years, the project witnessed significant and positive changes, particularly in the areas of Good Governance, women's empowerment and Sustainable Agriculture Practices.

The project achieved significant results in Good Governance, women's empowerment and Sustainable Agriculture Practices (SAP). Women and community groups became more confident in engaging with government authorities, raising community concerns and seeking solutions to local issues. This strengthened their participation in local governance and helped communities become more aware of their rights and responsibilities.

The project also promoted Sustainable Agriculture Practices, supporting farmers to adopt practical and environmentally responsible farming methods. An IEC material on SAP was developed and launched to support continued learning and awareness among farmers.

The visit of the Caritas Director to NMSSS project areas provided an opportunity to witness the changes and achievements of the JEEVAN Project at the community level.

JEEVAN leaves behind stronger community voices, empowered women and improved sustainable farming practices—a journey that has created lasting foundations for community-led development.

NAGPUR ARCHDIOCESAN SOCIAL SERVICE ACTION FORUM (NASSA)

The Nagpur Archdiocesan Social Service Action Forum (NASSA) serves as a collaborative platform bringing together priests, religious and lay persons engaged in social, health and community development ministries across the Archdiocese of Nagpur. Established under the leadership of Rt. Rev. Dr. Elias Gonsalves, Archbishop of Nagpur, NASSA seeks to strengthen unity, coordination and collective action in responding to the needs of vulnerable and marginalised communities.

Over the past four years, NASSA has grown as a space for partnership, shared learning and coordinated social action, with religious congregations and social-service organisations contributing their experience, resources and commitment. NMSSS serves as the coordinating body, facilitating communication and collaboration among the partners and encouraging a more connected and effective approach to Archdiocesan social ministry.

Through NASSA, the Archdiocese continues to transform collaboration into collective action for dignity, inclusion and sustainable community development.

NASSA - KEY OUTCOMES AND PROGRESS

During 2025–26, NASSA continued to strengthen collaboration and coordination among the Archdiocesan social-service partners, creating a common platform for sharing experiences, identifying community needs and exploring collective responses.

- Strengthened collaboration among priests, religious congregations and lay organisations engaged in social and health ministry.
- Improved sharing of experiences and good practices in areas including health, education, livelihoods, women's empowerment and community development.
- Greater coordination of social initiatives across the Archdiocese, reducing isolation among individual organisations and encouraging collective approaches.
- Identification of emerging community needs and opportunities for joint responses and interventions.
- Exploration of partnerships and resource-sharing, including possibilities for collaborative programmes and technical support.
- Enhanced role of NMSSS as the coordinating body, facilitating communication, meetings and follow-up among NASSA partners.
- Renewed commitment to stronger participation and structured follow-up, identified as important for making NASSA more effective and sustainable.
- Promoted a culture of collective service, bringing different Archdiocesan partners together around the shared mission of reaching vulnerable and marginalised communities.
